

KiwiSaver Performance Survey September Quarter 2012

Despite reaching its five-year fund performance anniversary, the KiwiSaver scheme is still in its infancy. So while this is an important milestone, performance judgements should be considered in this light.

Chris Douglas |11-October-12|

Morningstar has released its quarterly KiwiSaver Performance Survey, designed to help New Zealand investors assess the performance of their KiwiSaver superannuation options. The accompanying tables show KiwiSaver fund returns for the one, three, and five years to 30 September 2012. There were no fund additions this quarter.

This quarter marks the five-year anniversary since KiwiSaver providers began investing. Some quick statistics show that the scheme has been a success in terms of membership. Over two million people have signed up since 2007, and with total assets on the Morningstar database of over NZ$12.0 billion with KiwiSaver providers, New Zealanders have made a good start to their retirement savings journey. But it's still very early days.

For us, the true measure of success has been the level of discussion and debate about investing in the media, the funds management industry, and from the regulator. But it's also been pleasing to note the competition among scheme providers to deliver the best total KiwiSaver experience. We have witnessed fund managers seeking to engage their investors, substantial improvements in transparency, and a range of options for most investor types. We expect all this to continue.

Last month we also published a supplementary Morningstar After-Tax Performance Survey. You can find this and other articles at www.morningstar.co.nz.

We hope you find this performance overview helpful, and as always, welcome any feedback you may have.

Market Overview

Global markets posted very strong results over the past three months, as each quarter seems to move from one extreme to another. After poor economic data in the second quarter, the European Central Bank calmed investors' fears, President Mario Draghi stating that the Bank would do whatever it takes to save the euro. Later in the quarter, the US Federal Reserve launched another round of quantitative easing ('QE3'), and extended a plan to keep short-term interest rates at record lows — close to zero — until mid-2015.

The principal world sharemarkets rose in the mid- to high single digits during the third quarter of 2012. The US sharemarket continued its strong run, and while posting only a 2.90 percent return for the quarter, was up almost 20.0 percent over the last 12 months. Europe and the emerging markets generated strong results, while Japan was the only major sharemarket to produce a negative return. New Zealand shares were the place to be in the third quarter: our NZX50 Index jumped 12.80 percent over three months. New Zealand and global listed property continued their strong performance. The New Zealand and international fixed interest markets posted respectable low single-digit results for the three months to 30 September 2012.

When looking out over five years, it comes as no surprise that cash and fixed interest have been the better-performing asset classes. Sharemarkets have produced small negative returns, while fixed interest has generated high single-digit numbers. However, as the last 12 months have shown, shares continue to have the potential to produce very strong results. Investors with long-term horizons may find it remiss to allocate mostly to cash and fixed interest, especially on the back of past performance. With cash rates globally at historic lows, cash and fixed interest investments are likely to struggle to match their strong recent performances over the next five years.

Fund Manager Results

The strong returns from sharemarkets resulted in KiwiSaver options with higher exposures to growth assets (shares and property) outperforming those with more invested in income assets (cash and fixed interest) over the September 2012 quarter. Multi-Sector Growth and Aggressive options were generally the best performers over the three months to 30 September 2012, and KiwiSaver options with greater investments in New Zealand shares were among the best performers.

Over the quarter, Aon KiwiSaver Russell was the standout performer across the multi-sector categories. AMP KiwiSaver was the other provider deserving mention for consistently strong showings across the various risk profiles.

Looking out over longer periods is of course a better indicator of a fund manager's performance track record. The best-performing KiwiSaver options over the past five years have been SIL KiwiSaver (as well as National Bank and ANZ KiwiSaver) in the Conservative, Balanced, and Growth Multi-Sector categories. Fidelity KiwiSaver has also performed strongly across a range of risk profiles, including the Moderate, Balanced, and Aggressive Multi-Sector categories. Others deserving mention include Aon KiwiSaver Russell in the Conservative and Moderate Multi-Sector categories, Brook KiwiSaver across Balanced and Growth, and Fisher Funds KiwiSaver Growth.

Among the single-sector options, the best performer over the five years to 30 September 2012 was Milford Active Growth KiwiSaver, which posted a very healthy 12.01 percent per annum. It was easily the top performing overall KiwiSaver fund over five years.

Be Wary of Performance-Chasing

Every performance survey starts with the premise that past performance is no indicator of future performance. And this is very much the case here. The reality is that only a very select few fund managers have shown the ability to outperform their peers and an index consistently. It's an incredibly difficult thing to achieve, and one of the reasons why investors like Warren Buffett are so revered.

Choosing a KiwiSaver provider on the back of its five-year performance number alone is therefore likely to be a poor decision. We know that fund manager results swing around, and while a lot has happened over the past five years, this is still a comparatively short timeframe. Additionally, every one of the top eight KiwiSaver providers that we undertake analyst research on has had a significant change to the people in charge of the investment decisions and also in many cases the investment processes since 2007. This means that the five-year performance number is not necessarily representative of the skill and ability of the people currently managing the money.

Further, just because conservative funds with high allocations to cash and fixed interest have performed well over the past five years does not mean that they will post equally strong results in the future. High single-digit returns from fixed interest in the future are unlikely, given that interest rates are so low. For those who have a long time to retirement (at least 10 years or more), a more balanced approach with a tilt towards growth assets is likely to be the more appropriate option.

We believe that it's important for investors to first make sure that they are in the most appropriate risk profile (from Conservative to Aggressive). This decision is going to be the key determinant of future performance. While growth assets (shares and listed property) have posted more volatile returns, it is here that investors should benefit from stronger longer-term results, especially given the historically low interest rates from cash and fixed income. Fixed income investments in particular will suffer as and when interest rates start to go back up. And while this doesn't look to be any time soon, it will happen eventually.

Assets Under Management

KiwiSaver assets on the Morningstar database have grown from NZ$954.10 million at 30 June 2008 to NZ$12.91 billion at 30 September 2012, a phenomenal growth rate. ASB and OnePath remained the dominant players at 30 September 2012, with 46.0 percent of KiwiSaver assets between them. The industry remains highly-concentrated: the eight largest KiwiSaver providers account for 93.60 percent of assets on our database. This is a slight drop on previous quarters, though, showing some of the smaller players are making some minor head-way.

About This Survey

This survey groups KiwiSaver options according to their mix of income and growth assets, or their 'asset allocation'. This is one of the most important decisions to make when saving for retirement income. The term 'income assets' refers to cash and fixed interest securities which generally produce stable and reliable returns, but offer little opportunity for long-term capital growth. Returns from 'growth assets' such as property and shares will be erratic – as recent market volatility has demonstrated – but have over time shown greater capacity for increasing in value. The mixture of income and growth assets is the major determinant of potential return and volatility. Investors may notice differences between the returns published in this survey and those they see in other sources. There are several possible reasons for this. Firstly, the returns published here are all after fees, but before tax. Secondly, we take the associated tax credit into consideration when calculating and publishing these returns, while some fund managers base their published performance figures on month-end unit prices only.
